

PRESS RELEASE

12th July 2011

Science Photo Library Celebrates 30 Years

The world's leading scientific and specialist image and footage agency, Science Photo Library, has been in the business of providing world-class imagery for the last 30 years.

To celebrate their 30th year, they have been offering a series of short-term sales offers.

Their latest sales offer gives you the chance to purchase video clips or images contained within a special showreel showcasing the library's collections.

Due to expire on July 29th 2011, you'll need to get your orders in now, even if you don't need the imagery right away.

To take advantage of the offer, first register on Science Photo Library's website: www.sciencephoto.com (unless you have already bought from them, in which case go through your normal channels) and quote "summersale11" when ordering.

The offer can be used once for any number of the images and clips contained within this showreel (apart from those in the montage!). See this page for the showreel and accompanying galleries.
