

In Honor of Queen Elizabeth II's Jubilee Year, WPA Film Library Announces Special Offer

CHICAGO, IL May 1, 2012 –

In honor of the Diamond Jubilee of Queen Elizabeth II, The WPA Film Library will be offering 20% off the standard book rate for licensing orders that include British royalty footage. The offer applies to master footage ordered between June 2, 2012 and June 2, 2013. This discount cannot be combined with any other offers. Restrictions may apply. Please mention the discount "DIAMOND JUBILEE."

The WPA Film Library is a vast repository of historic archival and stock footage of all types, including extensive material covering the British Royal family from 1900 through 1970. This includes many aspects of the 1953 coronation of Elizabeth II, including a look at Norman Hartnell, the designer who created the Queen's coronation dress, the preparations for the coronation in London and the Commonwealth, views of various members of British royalty, and the coronation itself.

About the WPA Film Library

The WPA Film Library, founded in 1987 by independent producers, began as a repository of archival and stock footage for documentary programming. Acquired by the MPI Media Group in 1989, the company's holdings now include a vast amount of high-quality footage with tens of thousands of hours of vintage and contemporary images available. Formed in 1976, MPI Media Group is a leading independent producer and distributor of movies, home video and music.
